Communion Reflection... Many of God's people reach an age or stage of life when they believe they have served their time in the Lord's service. They rest on their laurels and wait for glory everlasting. However, all of us who have been blessed to see by faith the glory of God shining in the face of Christ, are being transformed by God's Spirit throughout our life, from one degree of glory to another. This means that our role as a servant of Christ is never finished. God continues to mold our hearts and lives as he prepares us for his glorious return. As we adjust to unexpected events in our lives, as well as the changes that aging brings, our roles and tasks in the service of our Lord will change. But our purpose never changes. It is always to bring glory to God, as we work together with our fellow believers for the good and growth of his kingdom, until the day when our transformation toward glory will be complete.

When was the last time you laughed? I mean laughed so hard tears came to your eyes and you thought you would never stop laughing. Here's another question: when was the last time you wept? I don't mean teared up; I mean really and truly wept to the point where your stomach hurt and your heart ached and you thought, "When will it ever stop?" I think sometimes Jesus must look at our world and weep. I think Jesus says to you and me "Do you see what's happening all around you? Do you see the neighbour next door sitting alone on the front porch?" I remember how Jesus cried out from the cross for his father... and for me.

Stations of the Cross
A great Lenten devotion every Friday during Lent
7 pm at St. John's Church

In our times of sadness or loss, it may seem as if joy and gladness will never return. Of course, we dare not sweep our sorrow and anguish under the rug. Our grief must be allowed to surface and given time to evolve, with God's help, from sadness into gladness. God promises that as we continue to trust in him as our source of comfort and hope, he will in time turn our mourning into joy. But when we are walking through a dark or lonely valley, we may be unable to see his light shining through the clouds of darkness and pain that overshadows us. Hope and healing break through our desolation when we discover that Jesus is already there in our midst. His presence may emerge through a hope-filled word from Scripture or a devotion, through a caring and understanding friend, or as we reach out to comfort someone else. Often it is only in looking back that we realize our Lord was with us the whole time.
