Communion Reflection... We sometimes make a to-do list to help us focus and get things done. People like seeing things get crossed off. God has plans for us today and every day. By God's grace we have forgiveness of sins through Jesus' death and resurrection. We have everlasting life and God's presence. God is for us, God forgives us, Jesus loves us and provides a hope and a future. Add one more thing to your to-do list. Thank God for his loving blessings and share your joy with others. Dear Lord, may all I do today be done in your timing and be according to your will. May I love others for you today.

The uncommon pathway of Christ is not the road to worldly recognition and success. They way of the world is to do whatever it takes to get ahead in life, no matter how many people you may need to push aside or trample on to get there. But there is another way. With God's help, we resist the temptation to run the race that leads to earthly glamour and glory. Instead, looking to Jesus' example and relying on his power, we can focus on following his pathway of selfless, sacrificial service. However, our sacrifice is infinitesimal compared to the suffering and shame of the cross, which Jesus endured in order to win for us and all believers the ultimate prize of eternal glory. Committed to following Christ's uncommon pathway, we can run with perseverance the race that he has set before us, disregarding the shame and blame that the world seeks to heap on us. For we know that the downward road of Christ leads to a glorious life with him.

FROM THE PASTOR

If you travel, you’ve learned that the best way to know a place is to walk it. Big cities, small towns, country lanes—if you don’t walk them, you can’t know them. It’s the view from when you are on your feet that pops things into 3D.

It should not surprise us then that when God came to us, he decided to walk. Jesus was no sedan chair tour guide dispensing wisdom from afar to the unwashed masses. No, Jesus walked right up to people; he walked right up to us! The disciples could hardly keep up. But only Jesus knows the route. It was more like a circuit through representatives of all humanity. He wanted to get to know us on a deep and individual level. No matter where we were, he walked to us. Nothing could slow him down. One time, he walked into a crowded room so he could speak God’s forgiveness into a man’s heart just before he spoke life into his dead legs. “Throw that mat away and start walking,” he said to the man, which the man immediately did. Like that man, we are beckoned to put one foot in front of the other down the path Christ has mapped out for us.
